GAUDETE SUNDAY

The Third Sunday of Advent is called Gaudete Sunday. Gaudete is a Latin word meaning joy. This Sunday is named like this because it is the first word of the Entrance Antiphon of the Mass: "Gaudete in Domino semper: iterum dico, gaudete". ("Rejoice in the Lord always, I repeat, rejoice"). The antiphon is taken from the Letter of Saint Paul to the Philippians (Phil. 4, 4-5), which goes on to say: "Dominus prope esse" (the Lord is near). This third Sunday, normally marks the midway point of Advent. This year we are already past the midway point of Advent but we are reminded that the coming of the Lord is near. As we approach the celebration of the Birth of Jesus, the Word of God reminds us how the prophecies have already been fulfilled; that we are in that time which some theologians describe as 'there, but not yet'. We continue to expect the coming of the Lord at Christmas and we continue to wait for His second coming with expectant joy.

This is why on this Sunday the Church makes use of Rose coloured liturgical vestments. This colour is a sign of joy and gladness. Joy because the expectation for Christmas is coming to its end, with the birth of Our Lord Bethlehem.

Christian joy, like hope, has its foundation in God's faithfulness, in the certainty that He always keeps His promises. In today's world it is very easy to lose hope and to lose our way, but as Christians we have the supreme joy of knowing that Christ never abandons us. Gaudete Sunday and the joy that we experience during this time is meant to remind us that despair is not the Christian way, but rather hope and joy of having encountered Christ: that the encounter with Christ gives us a serenity and joy in our hearts that nothing and no one can deprive us of.
